

2017 CCU College of Law International Summer School Program

August 7~August 18 2017

(Tuition : NT $15000)

➤ Program Description

The theme of the 2017 CCU International Summer School Program is Global Human Rights and Local Societies . The Program is designed to promote interdisciplinary knowledge and develop expertise about how human rights interact with culture and society in the wave of globalisation. The Program provides courses on general and specific topics consisting lectures, field trips and cultural activities. The Program emphasizes team work, interaction and learning by doing. It aims at offering students with opportunities to meet and interact with other students and lecturers from different backgrounds and learn the issues from various perspectives both in and outside of the classroom.

➤ Course Information

1. Global Human Rights and Local Legal Clinics

This course seeks to cultivate students to work in an interdisciplinary environment to tackle global justice issues concerning human rights. Students from different backgrounds will have the opportunity to interview local human rights institutes to search general information and identify the problems under selected human rights issues, and to find workable solutions to the problems.

2. Human Rights and Law

This course provides a comprehensive overview of international, regional and municipal systems for the protection of human rights. It will examine the difficulties and controversies in enforcing human rights and how particular human rights abuses are addressed in practice. In addition, it will also discuss specialist regimes such as those relating to women, children and indigenous peoples.

3. Economic Growth and Environmental Protection under International Law

This course considers how global economic growth interacts and conflicts with environmental protection in the trend of globalization and explores the role of the modern international legal system in tackling this issue. The major areas discussed in this course will include the world trading system, international investment law and international financial law.

Students will have opportunities to watch the movies, one relates to economic growth and environmental protection, another relates to human rights. In addition, students will be taught by drama experts in some classes and will visit a prominent local NGO and a local court.
